TEACHING ACTIVITIES

1992: developed a training program at Hathaway Children’s Village for fellows in child psychiatry at Cedars-Sinai Hospital, a UCLA affiliate. This training program grew under my leadership and persisted until the closing of Cedars’ psychiatric units late 2011.

Supervised graduate students in counseling, social work and psychology, as well as medical students and general and child psychiatry trainees at all levels, and provided regular continuing education to the therapists and staff throughout tenure at Hathaway.

Current teaching at USC focuses on clinical assessment and treatment on the Child and Adolescent Crisis, Emergency and Consultation Service supervising medical students and psychiatry trainees. With a grant from SAMSHA, developed the Child and Adolescent Psychiatry Trauma Program to teach our trainees how to work with traumatized youth and their families. In addition, teach a didactic course in psychotherapy, child residents' monthly Journal Club, and present a monthly clinical case conference jointly to pediatric and child psychiatry trainees.

RESEARCH PROJECTS

Current:

Rapid Assessment of Pediatric Psychological Trauma: pilot project has received USC Institutional Review Board approval for an emergency room study. This instrument, developed with Julian Ford, PhD, will provide rapid screening of all forms of child psychological trauma including bullying, and will include a Delphic Process to develop a gold standard clinical interview for psychological trauma.

Past

Justina: A Virtual Adolescent Trauma Patient: Worked with a team to develop this tool for training mental health students and professionals about PTSD and the significance of therapeutic alliance.

Developed a comprehensive database documenting trauma histories, symptoms, and functioning in multiple domains for a longitudinal outcomes project focusing on consequences of severe interpersonal trauma in a population of ethnically diverse youth in residential treatment.

Examined Best Practices across the spectrum of services provided by Hathaway's major sites including two community-based outpatient clinics, all residential, foster care, family preservation and substance abuse services (total agency budget: $18 Million).

Initiated Collaborative projects to explore improved treatment models for chronically traumatized children in residential treatment as well as examining alternatives to residential treatment.

GRANTS

The BC McCabe Foundation. $750,000, 2001-2004.

This grant funded the Hathaway Children's Clinical Research Institute. It paid for the development of Institute infrastructure and the first three years of data collection.

Renewal of the BC McCabe Foundation Grant. $ 650,000, 2004

This renewal grant focused on Best Practice evaluation across the agency. This led to a plan for Continuous Quality Improvement. These grants resulted in the development of a comprehensive database on over 100 traumatized youth.
